Famous Cartoonist Reveals Affection for Woman Who
Wed Eugene O'Neill

New York, May 21.—Ralph Barton, internationally known caricaturist who killed himself yesterday in his luxurious penthouse, went to his death with his mind filled with memories of his beautiful third wife, Carlotta Monterey, exotic Danish-French actress, now the wife of Eugene O'Neill, the playwright.

In a dispassionate review of the factors which led to his suicide, summarized in a note he wrote before his death, there were indications that his self-destruction was prompted in part by their separation.

Although he later married Germaine Tailleferre, French composer of the modernist school, his farewell note said:

"My particular remorse is bitter over my failure to appreciate my beautiful last wife, Carlotta, and whom I respect and admire above all the rest of the human race. She is the person whom I could have saved, had I been savable."

Author of 'The Iceman Cometh' and 'Long Day's Journey into Night', Eugene O'Neill, was married to Carlotta Monterey, actress, who later married Germaine Tailleferre.

His third wife, only one he loved, Carlotta Monterey, who married Barton in 1923 and was parted from him by a divorce decree in 1926, was the only one of his four wives that Barton loved, according to a farewell note found with his body. (Associated Press photo.)

RADIO STARS SADDENED BY WIFE'S SUIT

Admits He Has Lived Alone for Weeks; Doesn't Know
"Charges"

New York, May 21 (AP)—The voice to which millions of radio fans have listened choked with emotion today as Graham McNamee admitted that a romance which Broadway has considered an idyllic example for 10 years was shattered.

Mrs. Josephine Garrett McNamee is suing the radio announcer for a separation. The suit has been on file for several weeks, but no filing of her charges has looked out.

In his penthouse apartment on Riverside drive, McNamee, looking haggard and nervous, said he had been alone several weeks although even his nearest friends knew nothing of the McNamee intentions.

CHARGES A MYSTERY

"I haven't seen her application for a separation," he said, "but she has been served with the necessary papers. I don't know where Mrs. McNamee is now, but I do know that the statement that the separation is mutual consent is false. I don't even know what charges she has made."

McNamee's rapid rise to the heights of radio fame began before McNamee's rapid rise to the heights of radio fame.

In 1921 Mr. McNamee was a part-time bartender trying to make a living. One day he sang at the Dutch Reformed Church in New York City. There he met his future wife, Josephine Garrett, a soprano. He married her shortly afterwards.

When McNamee became one of the best known voices in radio, his wife would sit at home to hear him broadcast. As he put it, she was his "sewer cat."

Mrs. McNamee herself once wrote for a newspaper:

"As husbands go, I can't imagine anybody just like Graham."

GOING WAS ROUGH

But, at first, the young heroine found the going rather rough. In 1923 he was doing jury duty at $3 a day. During lunch period he walked into the American Telephone & Telegraph building and asked for a job. He got it—as an announcer, handy man and another job. He was in the building.

At first McNamee was too poor to have a radio set in his home, so his wife used to stand in front of a radio store on the street listening to her husband's broadcasts.

Six years ago, Miss Sylvia Cushman of Brooklyn, former actress, social worker, movie critic and self-styled friend of the former German Kaiser, his wife, Princess Hermine, and the Crown Prince, and Graham McNamee for $25,000, charging him with assault and battery.

The suit was filed at the Norfolk County Superior Court in August, 1925, and pending. At that time Miss Cushman alleged McNamee had "voluntarily assaulted her, beat and ill treated her" in New York City in 1923.

For lack of prosecution, however, the suit is to be dismissed next month. She is now in the dock as one of the officials in the dock as one of the officials in the dock as one of the officials in the dock.

The following year Miss Cushman was adopted by Miss Harriet Daley Hobbs of Winchester, Mass., and given permission to use the name, "Zoe Hobbs."

WORK CHARGES PUBLIC FANCY

Coming to New York from Kansas, Barton lived the usual checkered life of a budding cartoonist and illustrator until his scathing pen-and-ink comment on the "fancy of public and publishers, and his work became a 'vogue' in the 'smart' magazines.

He attained his greatest prominence through his illustrations in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "Lost" exposé of the tactics of the baby-faced gold digger.

Over all his successes hung the fear of insanity, induced by an ever-increasing melancholia which the suicide note said, had pervaded the artist's mind since boyhood.

The fear drove him to an endless flight from sadness—from wife to wife, from home to home, from country to country, in a relentless effort to escape from himself," as his note said.

At the age of 39, Barton was a veteran of four marital expeditions. He was divorced from his first wife, Marie Jennings Barton, in 1917. Anna Barton, his second wife, divorced him in 1923. In that year he met and married the glamorous Carlotta.

MARRIED IN 1925

They were married in 1923. They were divorced in 1926, and Barton's vagaries became more pronounced than ever.

In the same year he met Miss Tailleferre. They were married after a whirlwind courtship of three weeks.

Then another eruption of temper, prompted by the personal resistance which galled him, in 1927 he blasted forth with a violent denunciation of "American hypocrisy," as characterized in the 31st amendment and in the action of Congress in banning certain movies from the screens as subversive to public morals.

New York is a land of peace in which to live, I don't like to be told what I can read, and I don't like to be told what I can't read. I was his parting shot as he went his unimpeded way.

He stayed away just a year. In Philadelphia, May 21 (AP)—The body of Charles R. Vawter, widely known inventor, who was fatally burned by an explosion in his laboratory here, was on route today to Blacksburg, Va., east of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, where for many years he taught physics.

Mr. Vawter, member of a family prominent in Virginia educational circles, died yesterday. His death followed by 24 hours the blast which occurred in his workshop at his home in the Germantown section.

The inventor was lubricating a motor while testing ignition device designed for airplanes, when a spark ignited the oil, causing an explosion. The burning liquid fired his clothing.

Among the more than 200 radio and electrical devices he is credited with having invented or perfected were electric testing circuit breakers, and an attachment which made it possible to use the house wiring system as a radio antenna.

HITS MOVE TO AID RAIL LINES

Providence, May 21 (AP)—A majority report of the New England governors' railroad committee ignores the problem of New England's industrial future and is concerned merely with providing increased revenue for the New Haven and Boston & Maine, Clement J. Francis, director of the industrial division of the committee, charged today at a meeting of the Rhode Island Conference of Business Associations.

"The primary problem that confronts New England is not to save three or four million dollars for the New Haven and Boston & Maine railroads, but to bring into New England a transportation system that will revitalize this highly important industrial area," Francis declared in assailing the majority report which recommends the merger of the two roads.

Miss Roche, who is stenographer at the telephone exchange, was riding home at noon with her sister, Elizabeth, teacher at the Rollins grammar school.

As they passed through the Tower Hill section, two boys, one on each side of Essex st., were throwing stones at each other. One struck a window of the car and struck Miss Roche in the corner of the eye.

She pressed her hand to the eyeball, forcing it back into its proper place, and her sister drove to the office of Dr. Frank A. Conlon, P. O. seeking the boys.

It's Not So 'Jake'! BUILDING GAINS IN CITIES

Washington, May 21 (AP)—Based on reports from 340 identical cities having a population of 25,000 or over, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced today there was an increase of 6.2 per cent in the amount of building permits during April as compared with March. There was an increase of 18.5 per cent in the estimated cost of new residential buildings, but a decrease of 2.3 per cent in the estimated cost of non-residential buildings.

The estimated cost of the total building operations for which permits were issued during the month in the 340 cities totaled $161,709,271. The new buildings for which permits were issued in these cities provided for 14,311 family dwelling units. This is an increase of 2 per cent.

The four men who accompanied Mitchell R. Kaufman on the hunting trip last fall which resulted in his death in the Maine woods, were barred from attending his funeral by members of the family, according to disclosures today.

The feud which has been kept secret throughout the nearly seven months' search came to light following the brief burial ceremony at the Prince of Jesus Cemetery in West Roxbury just before sundown yesterday.

Relatives of the young rubber manufacturer who perished in the woods, witnesses admitted that they had declined to invite Kaufman's hunting companions to the funeral because they considered that they had been lax in launching a proper search for him on the November afternoon when he was last seen.

Friends of Crawford thought the hunting companions might be invited to serve as pallbearers. In fact, one of the men telephoned and asked if he and the others might not attend, and he was given to understand that the others would not be welcome.

Miss Bessie Kaufman, sister of the deceased, speaking for the family, said today:

"Now that my brother has been laid to rest we don't mind saying the family has always felt the interest and enterprise which might be expected in starting the search for him."

"They should have organized a search at once and beat the woods all that afternoon and night. They should have called all the woodmen possible and had them search the woods. They should have kept firing their rifles, beat my brother strayed far, and instead they waited until the next day and lost valuable time. That is why we did not see him have them set as pallbearers or to attend the funeral."

Kaufman's companions on the hunting trip were Francis Stein, Leonard M. Traub and Benjamin Masch, all of Hartford, Ct., and Meyer Orlov of Boston.

TOSCANNI IS FACED BY BAN

Rome, May 21 (AP)—It was said on good authority here today that Arturo Toscanini, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, possibly may be subjected to some "discipline" for refusing to play the Fascist national anthem at Bologna last Thursday.

This is expected in circles close to official quarters to take the form of a temporary suspension of his passport. Toscanini, after the refusal to play the air at a concert, was slapped by several Fascists.

NOBLE CASE IS DELAYED DAY

Lawrence, May 21.—Russell B. Noble will not be arraigned in the Superior Court today in connection with the indictment charging murder of Mr. Charles C. Phillips, Haverhill, District Attorney Hugh A. Clegg announced.

At the present time it is generally believed that Noble will be arraigned tomorrow. The first arraignment, with Judge Louis S. Cox on the bench, before whom the suit will be filed, will be occupied all day with another case.

The report of the arraignment of their mental examination of young Noble has not yet been filed at the office of the Superior Court clerk.

New Rum Czar Guides Forces as War for New England Liquor Market Is Waged

CZAR IN NEW RUM RING WAR

Onney Madden, leader in the New York underworld and liquor ring, is named today by the Masked Reporter of the Boston Evening American as the ruler of the powerful New York gang fighting Boston interests for control of the liquor racket here. AN $85,000 CATCH

The Masked Reporter told you all about the inside story of the attempt to ruin "Big John" Magnus. Part of the ingenious method to eliminate rivals of a strong Boston ring was the "bagging" in Dorchester of $85,000 worth of liquor found on a boat believed to have been controlled by Magnus. The federal agents admitted that the seizure resulted from instant telephone tips. The Masked Reporter reveals that the "other gang" were the tipsters. (Staff photo.)

THEY TOOK THE RAP

Magnus went to jail when he pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy and perjury, following an attempt to bribe Coast Guardsmen to allow him to draw alongside of the I'm Alone with his fast speed boat, the Peg II. The I'm Alone, under a British registration, was reported to have been the property of Magnus. Here is the crew of the I'm Alone after the capture and locked up in a New Orleans jail, by Coast Guardsmen. The I'm Alone was sunk when the crew resisted a search of the vessel. International complications were threatened. (International Newsphoto photo.)

AIR FORCES TO DECIDE WARS OF FUTURE

By GEN. WILLIAM MITCHELL
Former Commander Air Forces A.
E. F. and Director Military Aeronautics U. S. Army.

Chicago, May 21.—The air division is beginning its maneuvers over the great cities of the country and soon will make demonstrations at New York, our greatest city. The question naturally arises, what could airplanes do if they really attacked New York?

Aircraft carry the greatest weapons known to man. Cannon projectiles for our largest guns, weighing a ton, carry only from five to ten per cent of explosives, that is, from 100 to 200 pounds; but an airplane bomb weighing a ton carries from 10 to 75 per cent of explosives, in other words from 100 to 1000 pounds.

A 400-pound bomb carries the enormous charge of from one to one and a half tons of explosives.

BOMBS HIGHLY DEVELOPED

High explosives have been brought to an unprecedented power. A 400-pound bomb dropped on the earth will make a crater 16 feet deep, 60 feet wide and will either kill or endanger all the people within a diameter of about half a mile.

A 5000 pound bomb makes a crater about 14 feet deep and 40 feet wide and has a diameter of effect of one-quarter mile.

Poison gas will probably be used from aircraft in future wars, just as gas is now used by the army and navy, but in the form of smoke screens and in projectiles from cannon.

HOLDING BACK AIR FORCE

In a great city such as New York, it would probably be necessary for an enemy to kill it with only two or three comparatively small gas bombs to cause its evacuation.

In future wars, if a great air power threatens the center of population of another state which is not in a position to strike back, the mere threat alone may be sufficient to bring about peace. When the population knows and understands that a craft may operate into the heart of an enemy country and paralyze all their means of livelihood and subsistence, wars will be finished much more quickly.

FOES STAB GANG 'CZAR,' DUMP HIM IN A HOSPITAL

New York, May 21 (INS).—Vladimir Huggins, a sinister figure in New York's underworld, was mysteriously stabbed three times today—perhaps critically—and his crumpled form unceremoniously dumped on a settee in the lobby of Polyclinic Hospital, only a stone's throw from the heart of Broadway.

"Goodbye pal," said the man who carried him in. He then casually strolled out into the street, climbed into a limousine in which was seated a highly rouged brunette, and drove off. It was all done in the cold, matter-of-fact manner characteristic of the underworld.

There was the highly publicized Huggins, the so-called "czar" of Brooklyn and New Jersey beer rackets, in the same hospital where they took Arnold Rothstein when he was fatally shot, and where they took Jack ("Legs") Diamond when he was crisscrossed with bullets on another occasion.

But Huggins didn't stay long in Polyclinic. He was removed to Manhattan General Hospital.

As a matter of routine, the police asked Huggins who had stabbed him. With a weak smile, the racketeer replied:

"I'm a square fellow and I don't want to talk about it."

GANGSTER GUINS SLAY EDITOR IN REVENGE

Los Angeles, May 21 (AP)—The murder of Herbert Spencer, magazine editor, former police reporter, and crusader against organized gambling, and his friend Charles Crawford, wealthy politician, started police today on one of the greatest man hunts ever undertaken in Los Angeles.

On the eve of a projected exposé of gambling by Spencer's magazine, the editor was shot through the heart and the politician was merely wounded in the latter's office by an unidentified man whom Crawford had received. Officer said the circumstances indicated gangster revenge.

SUSPECT IS NOKOUT
Death overlook Crawford before he could keep a promise to identify the killer, who escaped in an automobile. Apparently confident that he would live, Crawford told detectives before he underwent an emergency operation that he would tell only "if I'm due to go." He died three hours after being wounded.

Early today detectives, spurred by a statement from Spencer's widow that the overlord of gambling here had threatened to kill her, searched houses of gamblers and gangsters for a "wealthy man about 35 years old of heavy build." An hour before the tragedy, Spencer, formerly city editor of the Los Angeles Evening Express, left his office, telling an associate that he was going out to get some more "underworld stuff" for the magazine, which had published a number of articles on alleged gang and vice activities here.

SLAIN IN OFFICE
Ray J. Radke, secretary in Crawford, reported to police that soon after Spencer entered Crawford's office a man appeared and asked to see Crawford. Crawford greeted the visitor at the door of his private office and asked him to enter. Radke said the man talked about an hour. Suddenly two shots rang out. Radke heard a scream and a yell from Spencer. "Get that fellow!" The door burst open and the man fled to the street. Radke rushed into the office and found Spencer dead. Crawford, sitting in his chair, arose and collapsed.

TOWN HONORS CLARA BARTON

Danville, N. Y., May 21 (AP)—This health resort, where Clara, 60 years ago, Clara Barton sought repose and a return to the life she had impaired by her labor in organizing the national Red Cross, today shared with the national capital the first honors of commemorating "the greatest woman" from every state in the Union.

From every European country, the republics of South America and countries all over the world have come requests for the two-cent stamp issued in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the American Red Cross.

It was here that Clara Barton, while a patient in the Jackson health resort, formed the first chapter of the Red Cross August 22, 1861, three months after the national organization had been founded.

Washington, May 21 (AP)—The American Red Cross today celebrated its incorporation 50 years ago. Two presidents of units of the international relief organization will open the golden jubilee tonight. President Hoover, who heads the society in this country, and Judge Max Huber of Zurich, Switzerland, president of the international Red Cross committee, will make addresses. Both the National and Columbia systems will broadcast the speeches.

Other famed persons will take part in the ceremonies. Chief Justice Hughes will preside while eight ambassadors and more than 50 other diplomatic representatives will be among the guests.

RED'S WIFE TO GET ALIMONY

Monroe, May 21—Non-payment of alimony to his divorced wife for the support of her three minor children was the reason given by the central control commission of the Communist party for expelling McPherson K. Belov, a Communist of 12 years' standing.

After getting a divorce, which was granted, Belov's wife sued him in court for alimony since they could not agree on a sum without recourse to law. The court ordered Belov to pay two-fifths of his salary monthly. Belov was manager of the State street office, an associate in which enabled him to pay the alimony from the payments and conceal his activities. Belov's complaint brought the attention of the committee, which got him from the party for "conduct unbecoming a Communist" and demoted him to a smaller-paying job.

Squeezing out blackheads makes the skin red and raw. The skin is not to get rid of these blemishes, it is to eliminate them. Use the cream. It will remove the blackheads and the skin will be soft and smooth. A little use of a hot, wet cloth will make the blackheads more visible, but will disappear at once.

FIRST REAL STORY OF CLARA BOW'S LIFE

She Wins Beauty Contest and Gets Into Movies; But Is Cut Out of First Picture

(In previous installments, Lonella O. Parsons, who probably knows Clara Bow, better than any other person in the world, told of the early days in the life of the flaming "It" girl. How she was broken by lovers' deceit—how she was the victim of her own soft heart—how men, professing to love her, always took from her, and how grief and poverty robbed her of joy and happiness even in childhood.)

Today Miss Parsons reveals the first joy in the screen life of the famous star when she won the coveted first prize in a film contest. Her joy, however, was short-lived, for a tragedy of the cutting room removed from the picture every scene in which Clara had taken part.)

CHAPTER 4

When her name was called, Clara was nowhere to be found. Her father, who was with her, in telling about that memorable day, said: "I jumped up when the name Clara Bow was called.

Born to trouble, Clara Bow sought to paint the clouds with sunshine. Her father tells of taking a job as street cleaner in Brooklyn when fate was unkind to the Bow family. Can you wonder, then that Clara sought happiness—and made a few of the birthdays that found poverty far behind. (International Newswire.)

"She is here—help me find her," I cried. Eugene Brewster called an office boy and together we went in search of Clara.

"We found her downstairs playing with a bedraggled mongrel and a couple of colored children. When I brought her upstairs, one of the girls who wore more paint and powder than Clara and I had ever seen outside of a dragstore, said: 'If that girl is in the contest, consider me out.' Clara had a dirty smudge on her face and, I must admit, she didn't look very much like a movie star."

The Bow spirit, even in those days, was not lacking. Clara, who a few moments before had been trembling with fright, suddenly held her head high and swept through the room with the air of a queen. Eugene Brewster and two of the judges who were watching her were overcome with merriment and admiration for Clara, who, although dressed poorly, was so exquisite in her youth and her innocence that the whole magazine force went into a conference to discuss her possibilities as their winner.

One of the painted beauties sitting with a smirk on her face said in an audible voice to her escort, "Probably a little girl from the streets."

Before Clara had time to take this insult to heart one of the judges said to George Favett, who happened to be in the magazine office at the time:

"Tell me who is that beautiful girl in the red Tam o' Shanter? She has the most engaging little face I have ever seen."

They were eliminated until only Clara and a Southern girl who had had stage experience remained. The Southern girl, beautifully dressed, was called first. Clara walked off the set.

"Where are you going?" asked the director. "Stay and watch this scene. You might learn something."

"Do I have to stay?" she asked.

"Certainly not, but this girl has had experience on the stage, and she can tell you how to play the part."

"I want to do it my own way," replied Clara.

Later, those who were on the set said the Southern girl did a beautiful piece of acting, but that Clara actually lived her part.

She watched for the postman, she listened for the doorbell, all without saying a word, for her mother was too ill to be disturbed.

"I thought," Clara once told me, "if I could only win the contest and make a little money I could send my mother to a hospital to be cured. Then, later, I would send her to the country where she could sit in a chair all day and sew, or read, or just rest."

"Happily, much as I wanted to be an actress, the main idea in the back of my mind was to make money for my mother and father. I was so tired of being poor and so miserable at seeing both my parents suffer from the terrible poverty that faced them from the day of my birth."

Three days later, a telegram came announcing that Clara Bow had won the coveted contest and that she would be given a part in a picture and special publicity.

In telling me about that day Clara said: "I was so excited and happy that I forgot I mustn't let mother know. I cried with delight—jumped up and down, shouting at the top of my lungs. 'I won the contest! I'm going to be an actress!'"

"My mother threw up her hands, fell to the floor in a faint, and all the joy of the occasion was lost when it took my father and two of the neighbors an hour to restore her. 'I told my father that perhaps I had better give up the idea of being a motion picture actress.'"

"You are wrong," he told me. "It's the one thing you are suited for. Your mother just isn't well. When she sees a famous star she will forget her objections."

"But my dear mother was never to see me on the screen," Clara said. "She died in a hospital before I made my first picture. I know now that she understood why I wanted so much to go into the movies, and my only regret is that she couldn't have lived so that I might have given her some of the love she never had."

A Bitter Blow

Clara Cut From Film

Things have never come easy for Clara Bow and breaking into the movies was not merely a matter of winning a contest. True to the agreement, she was cast for a part in "Beyond the Rainbow," Billie Dove, a "Polles" beauty, was the star and Christy Cabanne, the director.

No one told Clara how to make a picture and she went through the entire picture without knowing that shadow is necessary under the eyes, that rouge should only be applied to the lips and that mascara is effective when used properly.

The director, busy with the rest of the cast, let her make her five scenes without giving her any suggestions, or the help. To him, Clara was a necessary evil, forced on him by contest. He wasn't going to bother to give her any instructions. Not one word of advice did she get from the director or anybody else in the picture. She went on and did her scenes to the best of her ability, not knowing whether she had been satisfactory or not.

Finally, came the great day when the first picture, "Beyond the Rainbow," was shown in Brooklyn. Robert Bow managed to scrape up enough money for her to go and see the picture. Several of her girl friends went with her.

"Beyond the Rainbow," was shown on the screen. Not a mention of Clara—not one scene in which she appeared was left in the picture. Talk about the tragedies on the cutting room floor! Clara still remembers that moment, even now when life is so filled with other terrible blows.

"I can never forget that day," Clara said. "I seemed to me that everything I had dreamed about, everything I had hoped for, was suddenly swept away. My mother was tried to be a motion picture actress."

TOMORROW—Clara acclaimed in wedding life.

3 SLAIN BEFORE EYES OF PRIEST

Method, Wis., May 21 (AP)—Joseph Fleischmann, 33, shot and killed his wife and two small sons last night and for five hours held his two daughters, another son and three adults in a state of terror while he talked incessantly of firing his rifle into the air.

The three adults, one a Catholic priest, escaped from the Fleischmann farm home amid a burst of bullets. They called officers who arrested the man before he harmed his other children.

Fleischmann, an assistant butcher maker at a cannery, was armed by liquor. Sheriff George L. Heald said. He said Fleischmann had been confined at the Winnebago asylum twice for alcoholic insanity.

NEW DISTRICT PLAN BLOCKED BY DEMOCRATS

The State again faces the possibility of electing all its congressmen at large in the fall of 1932.

Democratic opposition to the redistricting plan reported by the special committee, which is before the Senate, is assuming sizable proportions.

When the committee plan, consolidating the Dillingham and Luce districts, was reported, it was given out that it was satisfactory to both parties.

However, the opposition movement was definitely set in motion when two former chairmen of the Democratic State Committee, Michael A. O'Leary and Charles H. McGue, protested to Governor Ely.

Accusals of the Democratic members of the Legislature were held and a committee of 13 appointed. The committee in turn appointed a subcommittee to draft a more satisfactory plan.

Cambridge is particularly dissatisfied with the new redistricting scheme as she will be represented by four different congressmen.

The Republican Senate members held a caucus of their own today and, it is understood, will insist that the committee plan be put through.

The first test will come when Senator William F. Shannahan of Lynn, will attempt to have substituted for the committee plan the so-called McGue amendment under which both parties would have seven districts each with the remaining district a fighting one.

While the Republicans have enough votes to force their plan through, a veto by Governor Ely would leave the whole matter "up in the air," and force an at-large election.

KILLER SHOOT FOUR; ESCAPES PURSUIT

San Diego, May 21 (INS)—Running amuck with a revolver, a man, who said was Ralph Sabourin, today shot and killed Eddie Gallagher, 13, and wounded three women so seriously they may die. The shooting occurred at Ascondito, near here.

Gallagher was killed in front of his home, after which Sabourin, according to Sheriff "Chapman," fired into the Gallagher home, wounding Gallagher's sisters, Laura, 15, and Lupe, 13.

Sabourin then fired into the home of his mother-in-law.

THIS IS THE TIME OF YEAR WHEN THE FASHIONABLE world is planning the widening of their horizons—Newport, Europe, Bar Harbor, Lenox, Stockbridge, Honolulu. The age-old tug of sea and hills comes with the first hot days. The whole world wants to get out of doors and start that coat of tan.

Among the first to leave after the Harvard graduation festivities will be Mr. and Mrs. C. Douglas Dillon (beautiful Phyllis Ellsworth), whose marriage this spring was one of the brilliant social events of the season. The young couple postponed their wedding trip until after Doug gets his sheepskin, but we hear they are planning to sail for Honolulu in June.

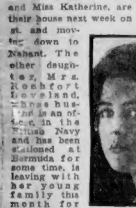

MRS. DILLON

The Ellsworths are an interesting family, 100 per cent American, and this season they will present their first daughter, Miss Alice (Bobby to her pals), who has suddenly blossomed from a tomboy turning hand-springs on the front lawn into a slender, graceful bud with a windblown bob. She and her mother, Mrs. John C. Ellsworth, from whom the girls get their lovely profiles, sat in front of us at the theatre the other evening, noticeably elegant.

Mrs. Curtis Guild to Open Villa

ANOTHER GRANDE DAME WHO WILL SOON LEAVE her native Marlborough st. for her delightful villa at Nahant is the gorgeous and gracious Mrs. Curtis Guild, ex-ambassador to Russia and wife of the former governor of Massachusetts. We saw her lunching at the Ritz this week with the lovely Princess Cantacuzene (Charles Curtis), who seems to have stopped the clock, for time has taken no toll of the beautiful girl who was the envy of every debutante when the handsome Prince Cantacuzene chose her to be his Princess. Although they have three children, the Princess is still just a beautiful young girl. She and the children will spend the summer at Nahant with her mother, Mrs. Thomas P. Curtis.

Mrs. HERBERT BOURNE and her daughters, Miss Edith and Miss Katherine, are closing their house next week on Beacon st. and moving down to Nahant.

MRS. BOURNE

Edith Seymour is an old friend of the Beacon Hill set. She has been famous at Bermuda for some time, is leaving with her young family this month for England, where the Lovelands will spend the summer.

Mrs. HERBERT EVER, one of that charming trio who offer such charming temptations at the Treasure House, will sell on the North Cape cruise June 30 to see that the attractive Elizabetha—Miss Pratt and Miss McKinstry—get all the beauty sleep they should. Mrs. Clarence Vase Burrage, another member of this miniature shop, will move down to Nahant.

MRS. PARKER WHITTINGTON ENTERTAINS MUSICALE WORKERS

Hostess to 60, at Duxbury Home

The wind-up party of the Boston Morning Musicales committee was held on Cape Cod for the last get-together of this season. About 60 of the committee members met down to Mrs. Parker Whittington's at Duxbury for a snift of the salt sea breeze and a delightful luncheon.

Mrs. Whittington greeted her guests in a cool green printed silk. Luncheon was served on the lawn of her lovely place with the garden as a beautiful background. Duxbury boasts some exquisite gardens and Mrs. Whittington and Mrs. John Adams are enthusiastic members of the Duxbury Garden Club.

Mrs. John Myers made a short speech in a pink silk sport suit with a blue jacket. It is through her efforts that the Boston Morning Musicales are such a tremendous success, musically and socially. She informed her co-workers that the season tickets for next season—and you should see the program—were almost all gone. There will be no single performance next year.

Another important member of the committee, Mr. A. Barr Comstock, looked genial and charming in turquoise blue blouse.

By ANN ARDEN

THE WELL-DRESSED woman is always most particular about the accessories she chooses to wear with every costume. One seldom sees among smart women any error in this direction and it is interesting to observe just how the hats and bags and shoes are being composed.

ONE of the outstanding combinations in fashion is the white-topped hat. The contrast is achieved in numerous ways, but the most popular of all is the oversize of white. The time pictured has many style notes, and would be a most practical choice for travel or about-town wear. The skirt is Lorraine brown, and the overblouse of white silk crepe, with a tan belt and belt of the skirt material. The coat is brown, a rough, pebbly wool, semi-fitted, its collarless neckline, fitted in white cuffs. Its belt is cinched in pleated flit. Both coat and frock are of finest quality. The white chamber blouse turned in its halo, entwined in brown patent leather. The white caftan bag has brown leather trim, the gloves are washable suede pullovers, and the pumps white buck, trimmed in brown perforated calf. Carved white beads complete the spotless line.

THE GREAT charm of the halo hat aside from its unique design, is the fact that it can so easily introduce the important note of contrast. Sometimes two or three colors can be combined in one. The crown, for instance, being in a brown and the twisted rib combining two contrasting shades to carry out some corresponding scheme in the costume.

THE WHITE turbans are most flattering and because they are worn so far back from the face leaving so much of the graceful lines of the hair showing, the hair becomes almost a trimming, that is when it is cleverly handled.

WHEN it comes to the hats that are draped then military really has something to say. A modern hat designer handles a straw shape as though she had so much fabric in her hands. She twists and turns it into lines that surround the face with a positive halo of fabric and the chances are that the summer girl of 1931 will, because of them, be pretty and devoid of spots of any and all influences to the contrary.

ANTWAT, keep your wardrobe to a white tone and you will find this coming season a successful one as far as clothes are concerned.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, models, costumes, or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser, or station WAAB.

American Girl Thrilled by Presentation

London, May 21 (AP)—Emotions experienced by an American debutante when presented to King George and Queen Mary in Buckingham Palace were revealed today in the personal account of one of the presenters.

She must remain nameless because of the policy of the American embassy in frowning on press interviews with the participants. "Being presented in court is even more exciting than I had ever imagined it would be," she said. "The climax to weeks of anticipation came when I entered the throne room and made bows to their majesties."

The presentation was more than a matter of routine when they reached the palace. The ceremonial was rigidly prescribed. The chamberlain identify each lady, ascertain that she is in the proper place in line and arrange her train so that all she has to do is to walk in, curtsy and take her place.

GORGEOUS PAGEANT

The throne room during the ceremony was the most gorgeous pageant that could be devised. The King was magnificent in his red and white uniform and the Queen was truly a regal figure in her golden chair.

The Queen's pale splendor, beaded with diamonds and pearls, really was the most beautiful gown in the room—partly no doubt because it was worn with such gracious dignity. To just the most remarkable event of the entire evening was when Queen Mary bowed to the court personnel and presented.

MOVING EXPERIENCE

"I hope that all of the American debutantes and maids who were presented are appreciative of the great honor they received. So little is known or understood of the ceremony and its significance that it is sometimes regarded merely as a symbol of social success instead of a really impressive, moving experience no woman ever could forget."

The Prince of Wales was present for the first time, having been prevented by a previous engagement from attending Tuesday night's ceremony. He was clad in the red military uniform of a colonel of the Welsh Guards. Prince George also was there in the attire of a naval officer.

COUNCIL VOTES
CREDIT PLAN

Geneva, Switzerland, May 21 (AP)—The League of Nations Council today formally endorsed a proposal by the Pan-European commission for establishment of an international mortgage credit company. "There was some debate regarding the League's position in Liberia," the Venezuelan delegate insisted that its Liberian policy must never be political lest the African republic's independence be compromised.

Efforts to suppress alleged slanders there will be weakened, he said, if the League adopted "imperial functions." Antonio Sattler, the Liberian representative, replied that assistance given by economic experts under the auspices of the league had been received in Liberia with gratitude. "Slavery no longer exists in Liberia," he said, "but I know for a fact that it still exists elsewhere."

MORE LOANS TO KEEP U.S. GOING

Washington, May 21 (AP)—With but six weeks remaining before the end of the fiscal year, the treasury had a deficit of $24,368,517 on May 15. It seemed probable that extensive financing would have to be done before June 30 to meet the situation.

While no treasury official would venture an opinion, indications were that a long-term bond issue was being considered.

However, rapidly changing conditions in government finances would prevent a decision being made until at least the early part of next month, and it still may be decided to continue borrowing with short-term paper until August or September.

Today, in the real estate columns of the financial Aids, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

BOSTON LAGS AS
'SAILING' PORT,
HEINEKEN SAYS

Boston is a big fishing port for the steamship business, but its passengers have not been educated to sail from here, says Philip Heineken, president of the North German Lloyd Hotel Hotel.

With this statement, Dr. Heineken, president of the North German Lloyd Hotel Hotel, said that the hotel had been a big success in the past, but it was not a big success in the present.

Heineken was guest of First Deputy Henry I. Harriman and other officials of the Chamber of Commerce at a breakfast before he ended his three-day stay here.

"If Boston business men can show me the proper demand in the financial market, I should be glad to order the Bremen or Europa to Boston for sailings," he said.

"Europe is one of the big factors in feeding passengers in the North German Lloyd, but they have the habit of sailing from New York."

"The ship business has suffered as much as any other business from the world depression, and it would be impossible to leave their service at present unless the business was guaranteed. At present, Boston does not give enough business to establish a base for sailing, but it could be done."

Guests at the breakfast today included John Schroeder, U. S. general passenger manager for the North German Lloyd; Carl P. Dennett, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce; Carl P. Dennett, chairman of the Maritime Association; Louis E. Kinneir, chairman of the port authority; C. F. Ward, Herbert K. Hallitt, Robert B. Bower, bankers; John A. Kelly, president of the N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad; E. A. French, president of the Boston & Maine railroad; Howard M. Black, vice-president of the Boston & Albany railroad; Ralph G. Hudson, A. V. Wood, Frank S. Davis, Charles E. Ware, Jr., H. M. Loring, Christopher Green, William S. Day and J. Paul Foster.

THE modern Miss needs no "time out" for the time of month.

If you've ever taken Bayer Aspirin for a headache, you know how soon the pain subsides. It is just as effective in the relief of those pains peculiar to women!

Don't dedicate certain days of every month to suffering. It's old-fashioned. It's unnecessary. Aspirin will always enable you to carry on in comfort. Take enough to assure your complete comfort. If it is genuine aspirin it cannot possibly hurt you. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. It does not upset the stomach. It does nothing but stop the pain.

Headaches come at inconvenient times. So do colds. But a little Bayer Aspirin will always save the day. A throat so sore you can hardly swallow is made comfortable with one good gargle made from these tablets. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Rheumatism. Pains that once kept people home are forgotten half an hour after taking a few of the remarkable tablets. So are the nagging aches that bring faint "nerves" by day, or a sleepless

WALL STREET

New York, May 21.—Railroad shares aided constructive forces in Wall street. For the first time in nearly two months the closing showed general gains.

Railroad shares, which began to advance two days ago after a protracted decline into the lowest levels experienced in years, rose in anticipation of the announcement at the close of the market that east-coast railroad presidents had determined to request an upward revision of freight rates.

RAISING APPARENT. Selling pressure, except through the market from time to time, but being buying apparent in the last hour. Recent nervousness over the monthly settlement day in London, furthermore, proved ill-founded. The day's turnover was 2,400,000 shares.

Excess up to 5 points included Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Rock Island, Atlantic Coast Line, Union Pacific and Santa Fe.

Leading industrial shares followed. United Fruit, Insular, and the United States Steel Corporation, American Can, U. S. Steel, International Paper, International National Telephone Service, and N. J. National Bureau and American.

Decline of 4 points in Worthington and Vanguard. American Telephone and Telegraph, American Express, and American International. American International declined 1/2 point, but American International Chemical declined 3/4 point.

COPPER IS LOWER. The copper issues generally showed lower. American International Chemical declined 3/4 point, but American International Chemical declined 3/4 point.

Wall St. is awaiting with some interest the semi-annual meeting of the American Bankers Association tomorrow, and is confident that the executives will make an optimistic statement to make on the construction outlook despite the substantial seasonal contraction in the first three months of the year.

Call money again renewed at 1/4 per cent, but was abundantly offered in the outside market. The effects of cheap money were apparent in the bond market, but then during the past few days there was not surprising, in view of the wide advance in the high-grade issues already secured.

Some bond houses are an exception that cheap money will eventually bring a thorough change in the market that they are adding to their sales force.

Grains Are Easier in Chicago Market. Chicago, May 21.—Grains declined today. Wheat, with May delivery at 1 1/2c lower, with May delivery at 1 1/2c lower, with May delivery at 1 1/2c lower.
